

Leo Seal to be presented Distinguished American Award

Leo W. Seal, Jr., president of the Hancock Bank of Gulfport, will receive the 1975 Distinguished American Award from the Mississippi Gulf Coast Chapter of the Hall of Fame and National Football Foundation.

The Gulfport banker will receive the award of the Chapter's annual banquet to be held at the Hilton Hotel in Biloxi April 1, at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are now on sale for $6.

The Distinguished American award is given annually to a Coast citizen from a six county area including Hancock, Jackson, Harrison, George, Pearl River and Stone Counties.

It recognizes a former football player who has carried the lessons learned on the football field into a life of service to his community.

Seal played tackle for Mississippi State University and graduated from that school in 1949 with a major in banking and financing.

Seal is also a graduate of the School of Banking of the South at Louisiana State University and has completed the Senior Bank Officers school at Harvard University.

While in college, he served on student executive committees representing the College of Business and Industry, and was elected to Omicron Delta Kappa, the Blue Key honorary leadership fraternity. He was also a member of the "M" Club.

Seal presently holds offices as state vice president for the Mississippi Chapter of the American Bankers Association and serves on the Executive Committee of the Mississippi Bankers Association.

His past banking offices include president, vice president and treasurer of the senior and junior sections of the Mississippi Bankers

Association, and he has several times served as state director of the Mississippi Independent Bankers Association of America.

Seal is a member of the board of directors of the Mississippi Power Company as well as a member of the board of directors of Standard Life Insurance of the South, Jackson, and the Magna Corporation. He is vice chairman of the board of directors of the Bank of Wiggins.

Present civic offices include chairman, Hancock County selective service board; board member, Main Street United Methodist Church; trustee, Piney Woods Country Life School; board of trustees, Millsaps College, Jackson; executive committee member, Mississippi State University Development Foundation; secretary, Hancock County Democratic Executive Committee.

Draft boards close

Those little draft cards can now be burned

All local draft boards will be closed by Feb. 29, according to Harold R. White, state Selective Service director. "This is the result of a drastically reduced budget recommendation," White explained in Jackson Friday "and it will cause what Bryon V. Pepitone, national director recently termed a dramatically altered structure of the agency."

"This means there will be no registration or lottery drawing in the foreseeable future, no classification actions, and young men will no longer be required to report change of address or anything else to their local boards," White said.

Since the two-year lapse of the draft law following World War II, this is the first time 18-year-olds will not be processed by a draft board. Both the lottery and registration this year would have involved men who became 18-years-old last year.

Due to the budget cut, manpower in the Selective Service System will be curtailed by 1,600 employees by the end of May. Fourteen hundred will leave in February with the remainder leaving in May.

The agency has already drastically curtailed its size and activity in the face of demands for budget reduction. Last fall, Congress voted a reduced appropriation of $37.5 million. An immediate effect of the vote was the termination of all registrant processing in January of this year.

After the local draft board offices are closed, all Selective Service records will be transferred to appropriate Federal Records Centers.

With the termination of registrant processing, White said it is now impossible for any new information to be added to a registrant's file.

He said with the exception of a few registrants who may be violators of the Military Selective Service Act, all registrants are now classified 1-H, meaning that they are not currently subject to processing for induction or alternate service.

For many years, all men were required to have their draft card in their possession at all times. However, this is no longer required. And there is no need to ask for a replacement card if a draft card is lost or stolen. "In fact," White said, "replacement cards will no longer be issued."

Because of the shutdown, the only Selective Service contact in Mississippi will be White, with offices at Mississippi State Headquarters, 4785 Interstate 55, North, Jackson, MS 39208.

Any person participating in President Ford's Clemency Program, who wishes to enroll with Selective Service to perform his alternate service obligation, must contact White in person, or by phone or mail after the end of February.

Selective Service registrants with questions about their status may also contact him.

USDA seeks opinion on changes

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has invited comments from the public on a proposed amendment to the regulations governing the School Breakfast Program.

The proposed changes are: -Public or licensed non-profit private residential child care institutions would be eligible to participate in the School Breakfast Program. Such institutions include homes for the mentally retarded, orphanages, temporary shelters for abused and runaway children, juvenile detention centers, and others. Previously, only public or nonprofit private schools were eligible.

-Meal patterns have been designed for infants and young children under school age residing in public or licensed nonprofit private residential child care institutions, since, under the proposed regulations, these children would be eligible to participate.

-The School Breakfast Program regulations would be amended to permit state agencies other than state educational agencies to administer the residential child care programs.

-To assure that an excess of food is not prepared and to keep plate waste at a minimum, the amended regulations would limit federal reimbursement to one breakfast per child each day.

Dale says mobile home regulations needed

State Insurance Commissioner George Dale said earlier this week it was apparent he would have to take stronger action in his capacity as State Fire Marshal to regulate tie downs for mobile homes.

Dale's comments came in the wake of high wind damages sustained in the Spring Ridge Mobile Estates in Clinton, Miss., earlier this month.

Dale said much of the damage caused at the mobile trailer park was the result of improper or no tie downs at all on over half of the trailers.

"I noted that only 35 percent of the trailers in Spring Ridge were properly tied down," Dale said. "If they had all been tied down properly and adequately, we might have curtailed the high damage which resulted."

Dale said he was prepared to make the following suggestions in light of what he now knew:

- 1) That insurance companies who write mobile home insurance consider some form of insurance credit for those mobile homeowners who properly tie down their trailers.
- 2) That utility companies refuse to connect utilities in mobile homes which do not conform with tie-down procedures as set forth in the Uniform Standards Code for Factory Manufactured Movable Homes Act of Mississippi.
- 3) That the management of trailer parks require owners to tie down their

- trailers as a safety measure.
- 4) That dealers who do not tie down trailers on delivery have their licenses revoked.
- 5) That all mobile home manufacturers doing business in Mississippi and licensed by the state be checked to see that they provide adequate tie-down equipment on all units sold to dealers.

6) That the state legislature consider a strong tie-down law for mobile home owners.

Prodigal prisoner asks to come back

"I answered the telephone and here he was telling me he was in San Antonio and his old lady was in the kook house."

The "he", Hancock Sheriff Sylvan Ladner said, was escaped trusty Floyd Hoda Jr. who telephoned collect Friday morning to say he wanted to come back to jail.

Hoda, 19, escaped from the county jail Sunday. He asked permission to empty the trash and was discovered missing about 15 minutes later.

"He told me he was disgusted because things just hadn't worked out right when he got to San Antonio," Ladner said.

Hoda would not tell the sheriff where he was in San Antonio, only that he would start hitchhiking his way back to Mississippi immediately.

"When he gets as far as he can go, he said he would call and we'll go pick him up," Ladner said.

Hoda was apparently worried about a possible transfer to the state penitentiary as a result of his escape, but Ladner told him the judge might be lenient if he waived his right to extradition and came home.

The prodigal prisoner is expected to be back behind bars sometime this weekend.

Mobile Medic official speaks at medical assistants meeting

Burt Patterson, Mobile Medic secretary-treasurer, spoke on emergency medical service and care systems at the monthly meeting of the Coast Counties Medical Assistants Association (CCMAA) held Feb. 24 in Long Beach.

Patterson said "a coordinated effort" to establish criteria for development of an emergency response system "within the medical assistants' environment would be a worthwhile undertaking."

He said based on that action, members could then begin to form an educational program for other medical assistants. Explaining emergency medical service, Patterson said five points to ensure a smooth procedure for both patients and medical personnel include understanding that an emergency situation can happen to anyone; determining and initiating the action needed to cope with the emergency; preparation, training; and rehearsal.

Special feature of the meeting was a brief history of the organization presented by Mary Ellen Ladner. Included in the history was recognition of past presidents, a review of CCMAA's purpose, goals, and accomplishments; and recognition of Mrs. Thelma Van Cloostere, who has missed only one national medical assistants convention.

Bing Crosby to lead effort to save wetlands.

Entertainer Bing Crosby will serve as honorary Chairman for the National Wildlife Federation's Wildlife Week March 14-20.

Theme of the 39th observance, first proclaimed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1938 and since sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation, will be "Save Our Wetlands."

More than 10 million students, teachers, and members of conservation groups are expected to join Bing, an avid outdoorsman and conservationist himself, in the nationwide observance.

Crosby expressed concern over Americans becoming more educated over the need to preserve wetlands for human life, as well as wildlife.

BING CROSBY

"America's wetlands are a priceless and productive natural resource," said Crosby, "which in addition to providing habitat for a great variety of wildlife, help purify our air and water, protect us from flood and storm damage, and are also beautiful to see."

"Yet many Americans," said Crosby, "still regard wetlands as watery wastelands—valuable only when drained and 'improved' with man-made structures."

As one of his duties, Crosby will record a number of save-our-wetlands messages to be used by TV and radio stations as public service announcements. In his radio and TV spots Crosby will offer free pamphlets on the wetlands problem to citizens who write the National Wildlife Federation at 1412 16th St. N.W., Washington, D. C. 20036.

"We hope to alert millions of Americans to the fact that our wetlands are fast disappearing and to encourage them to protect what's left," said Thomas L. Kimball, operating head of the NWF, which with 3.5 million members and supporters is the nation's largest non-government, non-profit conservation organization.

Last March the Federation won in federal court a landmark decision requiring the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers to extend its jurisdiction over wetlands beyond the traditional "navigable waters."

State University. Interested teachers should indicate in their applications which session they wish to attend.

Participants may earn three hours of graduate credit through the Division of Continuing Education, MSU.

Time at the week-long workshops will be almost equally divided between classroom sessions led by authorities from industry and education, and field trips to see firsthand some of the information gained in the classroom. Subject areas range from the environment, forest management, and utilization of wood products, to game management and studies of soil, water and minerals.

Some 15 different areas of study related to conservation education will be covered, providing teachers with materials to take back to their classes in the fall.

Try creating and serving your own soup

From a tasty bisque to a hearty gumbo, soup is a universal favorite. It knows no season—soup time is any time. Somehow it goes especially well on cold days. Choose from any one of the many flavors of canned, frozen or dehydrated soups or your own homemade recipe. There are advantages to using each one.

Canned, frozen or dehydrated soups save time in preparation and give you variety in selection. Frozen soups have an excellent flavor. Be sure to store them at zero degrees until you're ready to use them. The use of commercially manufactured soups is one method of getting flavor variety with a minimum of raw materials. For example: Cook a soup bone, celery tops, onion, salt and pepper together in a quart of water for hours. Strain, then add a can of condensed vegetable soup. This will give to the soup the subtle flavor of many herbs as well as a variety of vegetables, with a minimum of food preparation and time.

The variety of canned soups available is impressive. There is also a variation in the amount of built-in service. There's the heat or chill and serve soup; the condensed soup to which you add an equal amount of water or milk. And then just heat. What's more, new varieties are constantly appearing on the market. The cream soups make quick and easy sauces for many dishes on days when you time is limited.

The dehydrated soups are soups from which the water has been removed in a special drying process. They are then, hermetically sealed in paper envelopes or in cans with easy open tops. These soups have some distinct advantages such as: long shelf life, can be stored in a small area, and the addition to liquid restores the original flavor—which is excellent. Dehydrated soups are the joy of campers and hunters, where weight and space is so important.

Homemade soups can be a real budget stretcher. They let you use bits of leftovers that you would otherwise throw out. Keep a soup jar in your freezer for such leftovers, and add to your jar after each meal. They're time-savers and money savers on soup day.

How much do homemade soups cost? There can be no one answer since family tastes and preferences are so different. But there can be no argument that homemade soups can be very filling and satisfying—both to the appetite and your pride in seeing your family enjoy something you have created.

Long Beach krewe presents

"Let Freedom Ring"

KING SCOTT XVI AND QUEEN ROSALIE

Take precautions when burning trash

Mississippi Forestry Commission Forester Michael Williams issued a warning about high forest fire danger today and urged Hancock County residents to be extremely careful when burning trash or brush piles. He pointed out that better than 99 percent of the County's forest fires are man caused.

Most of our fires occur from November through March. The killing frost creates an accumulation of litter on the ground that is highly flammable. This condition remains until green grass appears again in the Spring. Although the major portion of this time span has passed the worst is yet to come. March always brings with it strong winds which make fire control very difficult.

"The heavy accumulation of litter and a little wind", the forester said, "can turn an unwatched trash or brush pile into a raging inferno that will destroy thousands of trees in a matter of minutes."

Before doing any burning certain precautions should be taken to insure control of the fire, they are:

- 1) Plow, disk or rake a clean strip at least 6 feet wide around the area to be burned exposing the mineral soil.
- 2) Have ample man power and fire fighting equipment available to help control the fire should it escape.
- 3) Burn shortly after a rain when the ground is still damp.
- 4) Burn when there is no wind.
- 5) Stay with the fire until it is completely out.
- 6) Call the local fire tower notifying them that you are going to burn.

If you need help in planning for a burn you should contact your County Forester. He can prepare a plan on how the burn should be done and give you assistance with the actual burning itself.

succeeding Louis E. Richard. Other officers elected were C.E. Schmidt, vice president, History Wing; Joe Manuel Jr., vice president, Archaeology; Mrs. Bette J. MISS UNIVERSITY - Vonda Van Dyke (left), former Miss America and emcee for the 1975 Miss University pageant held on the Old Miss campus, congratulates winner Nancy White, a junior Business Administration major from Gulfport. Approximately 40 beauties vied for the crown which leads to the Miss Mississippi competition, a preliminary to the Miss America contest.

Gulfport beauty crowned Miss University of Mississippi

UNIVERSITY, MISS. — The new Miss University of Mississippi, Gulfport junior Nancy White, says the pageant no longer places emphasis on outward appearance.

"The Miss University Pageant is not a beauty pageant. It stresses talent above everything else and personal interviews are extremely important," she explained. "Outwardly, judges are looking for attractiveness, a pleasing appearance, not beauty."

"The deciding factor is the inward beauty of the person... They are looking for this special quality. In reality, representing the University will be a public relations job."

She feels the title holder must be intelligent and able to speak before an audience. This ability is also stressed in the judges' personal interviews.

Pageant competition was stronger this year, she commented, adding that the 38 contestants were "extremely talented."

"In other pageants a lot of contestants just got on stage and performed as in a talent show. This year every contestant was outstanding in all areas."

This is not Miss White's first pageant. In her senior year of high school, she was named first runner-up to the state's Junior Miss. When she was 18-years-old she was chosen Miss Gulfport. She has also served as first alternate to Gulfport's Miss Hospitality.

Beauty honors at Ole Miss include selection as a Top Five Beauty and being named first alternate in last year's Miss University Pageant.

"I really wanted the title but I didn't let it become an obsession," said Miss White. "Coming back as first alternate, there is a great deal of pressure—you have to do a lot better."

She began preparing for the pageant in November, practicing "Come Rain or Come Shine," a Judy Garland tune, for talent competition.

Winning the title, she said, "felt something like winning a gold medal in the Olympics—I'd worked for it a long time." Miss White is a Public Administration major at Ole Miss. In July, she will be representing the University in the Miss Mississippi pageant held in Vicksburg.

Consumer's Notebook

With Patricia Couch

A curious 8-year-old boy named Jimmy used a hammer and nail to puncture an old can of spray paint he found in his parents' garage. The can exploded, hurling pieces of sharp metal into his face and chest and cutting him severely.

This is not an uncommon accident. Each year about 5,000 Americans receive emergency room treatment for injuries associated with aerosol cans. These pressurized cans are used every day by millions of consumers to spray on medications, deodorants, paints, pesticides and beauty products. Over two billion aerosol cans were manufactured in the U.S. last year.

Aerosol cans explode easily. For that reason, they should never be punctured or exposed to temperatures over 100 degrees. The contents of some aerosol cans - such as propane - are highly flammable. These sprays will burn like a blowtorch when ignited by matches or other flame sources. The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission has recorded cases of women who received serious, disfiguring burns when the cigarettes they were smoking ignited cans of hairspray.

Some aerosol cans contain toxic propellants. Vinyl chloride, for example, can be a killer if used in unventilated rooms and inhaled in quantity. People who have "sniffed" aerosols have suffered dizziness, lack of coordination, nausea, headaches or blurred vision. Others have died. Numerous aerosol sprays have been linked to heart trouble, skin problems, respiratory problems and cancer. Other sprays, such as insecticides, have been responsible for serious chemical burns.

To protect yourself and your family from any accidents associated with aerosols, keep the cans in a cool location and do not expose them to direct sunlight, radiators or stoves. Don't leave the cans locked in your car on a hot day.

Dispose of aerosols with other non-burnable trash, and never throw them in trash compactors or incinerators. Read the instructions on every can before using it, and be sure you have plenty of ventilation when you spray indoors. Stop work at the first sign of dizziness or nausea, and seek fresh air. Never use aerosols around food or flame. Wash your hands after spraying, especially if you are using insecticide sprays. Most important, teach your children about the hazards of

Ladner named psychological services head

Ole Miss basketball

Rebs face embarrassment of SEC goose egg

Ole Miss closes out its campus basketball calendar here Saturday, Feb. 28, and Monday, March 1 with a pair of Southeastern Conference games against Kentucky and Vanderbilt.

Both meetings in the Rebeldom will get underway at 7:30 p.m.

Still without a victory in 14 SEC tilts, the Rebs had the door open and their hand on the knob Monday night only to lose well into the final minute to Georgia in a road game at Athens. That score was 70-68.

For a change, the Wildcats are on the sidelines in this year's Conference race but Vandy's Commodores are very much in the running. Ole Miss can spoil the Vanderbilt title bid with a turnabout victory in the Monday finale to 1976 campus play.

Vandy scored at 61-60 with a 35-foot desperation basket at the buzzer in the first meeting between the two teams Feb. 2 in Nashville.

Kentucky is 7-7 in Conference warfare into Saturday night's battle here. Vanderbilt is 11-3 into its game with LSU in Baton Rouge over the weekend.

In the earlier skirmish with the Wildcats in Lexington, Kentucky claimed an 89-81 verdict although the two teams deadlocked in field goal firing, each with 37 baskets. That game was played last Jan. 31.

Two nights later, Coach Robert "Cob" Jarvis' outfit held a 60-59 lead with 10 seconds on the clock when Vandy headed downcourt. Soph point guard Dickie Keefe passed to 6-6 Jeff Fosness who returned the ball while in midair. Keefe then fired from 35 feet out, a last-gasp bomb, and the ball touched only the net as the buzzer sounded.

One official ruled that the goal had been made after the buzzer, the other one suggested a consultation with the officials' table, and the official timer ruled in favor of the home team.

Worth noting is that a Rebel goal ending the first half, by guard Elijah Emanuel, was ruled too late to count — fired after the buzzer had sounded.

In Monday night's clambake at Georgia, the Bulldogs trailed for the last 16 minutes of the first half, and were down by 14 with the 42-28 score at intermission. They finally caught up at 68-68 with 1:15 left in the game, then won it with six seconds remaining when replacement forward J.J. Hicks dropped in a pair of charity tosses.

It was Georgia's second two-point win over the Rebs this winter, the Bulldogs escorting a 74-72 triumph back to Athens here the evening of Jan. 26.

If there are any more ways to lose, this season's hard-luck Ole Miss cast probably will bring them to light. Meanwhile, they're taking dead aim on Kentucky, then Vanderbilt in closing out campus play for the season.

Neither game is out of the Rebel reach — as they found out on the road four weeks ago.

In the girls' contest, Bay

High's Sharon Arnold and Lucinda Kidd defeated Holly Vegas and Chrystal Spencer 6-1, 6-2 while Chuck Newland and Frank Henry defeated Theron Furr and D. Coffey 6-1, 6-3 in the boys' match.

Bay High is 1-0 and will play Ocean Springs Friday, March 5 at Bay High. Match time is 2:45 p.m.

Coast embraces carnival spirit

By JOE PILET

PASS CHRISTIAN-Sunday was a happy day, a holiday, a veritable Red-White-and-Blue Letter day when the entire Gulf Coast Community turned out to view or be a part of the annual Mardi Gras festival.

Right on schedule the Pass Christian Carnival Association paraded an hour and 45 minutes amid excited cheers and fanfare.

Wheels propelling fire trucks, police squad cars, the Paddy Wagon, motor cycles, bicycles and at least one unicycle. On the sideline wheelchairs with residents from Miramar Nursing Home who also waited to catch the throws, beads and trinkets — happily forgetting the hum-drum of just another day.

Mrs. Alice Northrup, oldest person there, will be 107 years of age this coming June. Although she didn't speak her small hand squeezed acknowledgements to congratulating friends.

In the Grand finale the Mississippi Wagon Train Entourage led by Tom Watts sitting tall in the saddle of his roan red mount received the key to the city from Mayor Steve Saucier. And from Louise and Elmo Nolan a specially designed sand bottle depicting horses with heads high and manes waving. A little museum gem summing up the prevailing spirit of '76. A smashing, unforgettable parade.

Parc Christian to be scrutinized by planning body

By MIKE FLYNN

The Pass Christian Planning & Zoning Commission will meet tonight to further discuss, and possibly vote on, the most recent plat submitted on the ongoing Parc Christian dispute.

The entire commission is expected to be present at the meeting scheduled tonight for the Pass Christian City Hall. The meeting is open to the public and a large crowd is expected to be on hand as the Scenic Drive development is discussed.

The last recommendation of the board was for rejection of the controversial subdivision proposal. Since then several changes have been made in the plat for the proposed Parc Christian development causing much discussion in the city, especially among beach front property owners. The new plat was submitted last Thursday and the commission members voted to take the plat under advisement for a week.

Changes have also occurred in the structure of the board (see Feb. 26 ECHO) which may or may not change the disposition of the board.

At issue is whether to grant a variance in the width of easements.

Another question is whether or not the proposed subdivision would have a detrimental effect on the character of the historic Scenic Drive area.

Both the Pass Christian Historic Society and the Pass Christian Homeowner's Association have expressed concern over the proposed destruction of the old Victorian house that now stands on the property in question. The type of homes to be built in the subdivision is also an issue.

The Pass Christian Homeowner's Association this week placed an ad in the TARPON BEACON newspaper very critical of the Parc Christian development. The ad expresses concern over the type and prices of homes that would be constructed in the subdivision if it were to receive the Planning Commission's approval. It cites a portion of the Protective Covenants for Parc Christian that would allow the construction of one-story homes as small as 1400 square feet and two-story homes with 800 square foot ground floors.

Compared with homes in the near neighborhood of the proposed subdivision, this would allow construction of houses much smaller than those already in the area and might lead to the argument that the character of the neighborhood might change.

Happy Mardi Gras!

If parade watchers had as much fun as this parade participant, the second annual Triton Mardi Gras parade had to be a success. People lined U. S. Highway 90 from Waveland to Bay St. Louis for a glimpse of the King and the chance to catch a doubloon.

Ole Miss basketball

Rebs face embarrassment of SEC goose egg

Ole Miss closes out its campus basketball calendar here Saturday, Feb. 28, and Monday, March 1 with a pair of Southeastern Conference games against Kentucky and Vanderbilt.

Both meetings in the Rebeldom will get underway at 7:30 p.m.

Still without a victory in 14 SEC tilts, the Rebs had the door open and their hand on the knob Monday night only to lose well into the final minute to Georgia in a road game at Athens. That score was 70-68. For a change, the Wildcats are on the sidelines in this year's Conference race but Vandy's Commodores are very much in the running. Ole Miss can spoil the Vanderbilt title bid with a turnabout victory in the Monday finale to 1976 campus play.

Vandy scored at 61-60 with a 35-foot desperation basket at the buzzer in the first meeting between the two teams Feb. 2 in Nashville.

Kentucky is 7-7 in Conference warfare into Saturday night's battle here. Vanderbilt is 11-3 into its game with LSU in Baton Rouge over the weekend. In the earlier skirmish with the Wildcats in Lexington, Kentucky claimed an 89-81 verdict although the two teams deadlocked in field goal firing, each with 37 baskets. That game was played last Jan. 31.

Two nights later, Coach Robert "Cob" Jarvis' outfit held a 60-50 lead with 10 seconds to go. Vandy's Soph. po. Keefer p. Fosness while in the fired from gasp bor touched o buzzer sounded.

One official ruled that the goal had been made after the buzzer, the other one suggested a consultation with the officials' table, and the official timer ruled in favor of the home team.

Worth noting is that a Rebel goal ending the first half, by guard Elijah Emanuel, was ruled too late to count.

with six seconds remaining when replacement forward JoJo Hicks dropped in a pair of charity tosses.

It was Georgia's second two-point win over the Rebs this winter, the Bulldogs escorting a 74-72 triumph back to Athens here the evening of Jan. 26.

If there are any more ways to lose, this season's hard-luck Ole Miss basketball will Need sword dancers

Skirl of piper's tune, aim of forming band

The bagpipe is a musical instrument of ancient origin. Called the musette in 18th Century France, it is now chiefly associated with Scotland.

The first pipe band seen in a long time in Hancock County participated in the Nereids Parade last week, and evoked some considerable comment.

Well known throughout the world, pipebands have led troops into action for hundreds of years. Their sound is unique and, when supported by a strong drum section, truly exhilarating.

Each band member is attired in the tartan of their clan connection in Scotland or affiliation and each has practiced for many hours, and generally years, before reaching the stage of proficiency required of parade performances.

Bay St. Louis now has a pipemaster living in its midst who is considering the formation of a local group.

All area youths are eligible to try for band, and previous experience is not necessary. If formed, the unit will consist of drummers, pipers, and dancers.

Pipers will train on a practice chanter, until they master fingering, the chanter being not unlike a flute or whistle.

Drummers will be required for base, tenor, and side drums, with the warning that the tunes and methods used with the pipes are unlike those of the more conventional U.S. Bands.

Dancers are needed to acquire skills in country, round, and specialty (such as sword) dancing.

Due to the intense training involved, the band will be especially suited to junior high and freshmen senior high students. (-J-)

Coast embraces carnival spirit

By JOE FILET

PASS CHRISTIAN—Sunday was a happy day, a holiday, a veritable Red-White-and-Blue Letter day when the entire Gulf Coast Community turned out to view or be a part of the annual Mardi Gras festival.

Right on schedule the Pass Christian Carnival Association paraded an hour and 45 minutes amid excited cheers and fanfare.

Rock Roll heats up with Arizona entry

The Sun Devil Rock of Arizona has registered for the Sunday Echoes Rock Roll and Pet Rock Joust.

This entry confirms our suspicions, originally voiced last week, that the Rock Joust Caper is assuming national importance and is likely to develop into something more than the multi-million dollar spectacular we had originally envisaged.

We have been in contact with the publisher of "The Pet Rock Annual" and the author of "The Rattle at Headrock House," both of whom confirm this developing significance of the contemplated pet rock affair.

We have received our first piece of mail concerning program suggestion (an item printed elsewhere) and our present intent is to incorporate at least one of these forceful suggestions into our program.

A new item has also been called to our attention. This concerns the reaction of flora to soothing music.

We are now toying with the idea of staging a concert to grow your plants by (or to), to which tickets would be sold directly to the plant on the provision that they each bring an adult, or in the case of a small or developing plant, a child, with them to the concert.

Plants with which we have discussed this idea have greeted the suggestion with a somewhat earthy viewpoint and the advancement of some deep-rooted suggestions.

As this idea flowers, we will interlace progress reports with those of the rock caper as we realize one may serve to ultimately embellish the other.

Who said Southern politeness is a thing of the past? Heard about the latest auto accident in a local parking lot? Seems a shopper came back to find his car rather dented. Said the rather unhappy little lady who's done the denting, "So glad you returned. I wouldn't have been happy without a chance to apologize!"

After a long study of the subject, one Waveland husband states that, on the average, about 21 minutes after a wife says it's time to go -- she does.

Our most humble apologies if we have ever low-rated Bay area husbands! One of you out there seems to have what it takes!

A neighbor went shopping with a friend the other day. She found an exquisite creation but had little cash with her. Said she couldn't charge it because hubby had told her they have a 30-day charge account and this month only has 29 days!

Another local husband taught his son an invaluable lesson the other day. After an argument with his wife, the man slammed out the back door to stalk around the yard and cool down. "Hey, Dad," asked the son, "are you gonna let Mom have the last word?" From Dad's grumbled answer, one sentence emerged clearly. "Good grief yes! Now that she has finally reached it!"

Our teen-age daughter says she can't understand why we find it so much harder to diet than she does. Guess our habit of eating is just of much longer standing than hers!

Do believe our youngest has been watching too much TV. He decided to examine the cat's mouth last night and was overheard murmuring, "What small dentures you have!"

"Mrs" be utilized instead of the NOLFIR endorsed "Ms."

In explaining her viewpoint to us, NOLFIR CM Ms. Gertrude said, "A rock is a rock irregardless of whatever."

We adjudged this to be a fair summary of truth, and therefore feel the Sunday Echoes Rock Joust should declare its complete impartiality in matters concerning name prefixes, and in all other like affairs designed to discriminate and possibly influence judging.

Further, Rockheads, no word, has yet been forthcoming on your intentions concerning housing for either the non-aligned, NOLFIR, or even Mr. rocks - and that includes the much touted Alamo stone.

It is beyond the realms of reason to expect our rocks to just lie around between events or, worse still, be exposed to unlimited handling.

If you intend to survive in the competitive world of Rock Rolls you had better smarten up. Remember, he who has rocks in his head should not swim in deep water.

Dear Rockhead,

Before you go much further into your Pet Rock thing, you had better pay some heed to the changing world.

Rocks have distinct personalities, and it is to that frame of reference we direct your attention.

Before entering our fine, undoubtedly winning rocks, into whatever categories you think will cover both their pedigree and charm, and their fine upbringing and devotion to us, we demand a firm ruling on the prefixes to be employed in their description.

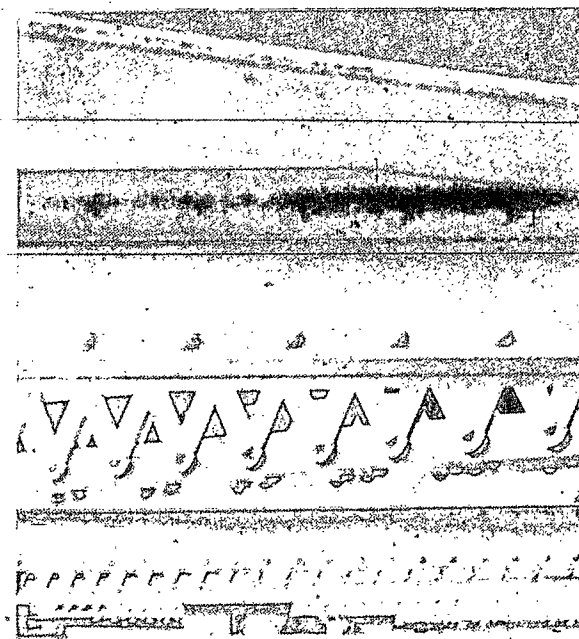

For example, one of our most personally delightful rocks, Gertrude, is a charter member of the National Organization for the Liberation of Female and Indigenous Rocks (NOLFIR).

This charter member (CM) is concerned lest at the registration of NOLFIR members, the employment of the designations "Miss" or

"Well, where/what is it"

"Well, where-what is it?" will portray a different, well known area scene, or article, location or item for each contest. Each will be presented in disguised photographic form, with the complete description being provided upon completion of each contest. Clues, in the form of poetic verse, will be given, with additional lines being added each week the contest location or item remains unsolved.

The difficulty factor of Contest 11 has taken another upping and is now rated as a "wow-zinger." Our chief "contest letter drawer-outer" messed around with entry after entry on Thursday (all having previously been recorded by our chief "mail stamper-inner") but failed to come up with the correct solution. And herein lies a story. Several entries are so close it is difficult not to declare a winner, and one even includes the solution in its scope. BUT, the answer must identify the "Where" right on the button. This of course in the interests of maintaining an honest game. Clue No. 3 is hardly needed, but is added for "qualification."

Next letter opening session is after all mail received on Thursday, March 4. Good Luck! (-J-)

Parc Christian to be scrutinized again by planning body

By MIKE FLYNN

The Pass Christian Planning & Zoning Commission will meet tonight to further discuss, and possibly vote on, the most recent plat submitted on the ongoing Parc Christian dispute.

The entire commission is expected to be present at the meeting scheduled tonight for the Pass Christian City Hall. The meeting is open to the public and a large crowd is expected to be on hand as the Scenic Drive development is discussed.

The last recommendation of the board was for rejection of the controversial subdivision proposal. Since then several changes have been made in the plat for the proposed Parc Christian development causing much discussion in the city, especially among beach front property owners. The new plat was submitted last Thursday and the commission members voted to take the plat under advisement for a week.

Changes have also occurred in the structure of the board (re: Feb. 28 ECHO) which may or may not change the disposition of the board.

At issue is whether to grant a variance in the width of easements. Another question is whether or not the proposed subdivision would have a detrimental effect on the character of the historic Scenic Drive area.

Both the Pass Christian Historic Society and the Pass Christian Homeowner's Association have expressed concern over the proposed destruction of the old Victorian house that now stands on the property in question. The type of homes to be built in the subdivision is also an issue.

The Pass Christian Homeowner's Association this week placed an ad in the TARPON BEACON newspaper very critical of the Parc Christian development. The ad expresses concern over the type and prices of homes that would be constructed in the subdivision if it were to receive the Planning Commission's approval. It cites a portion of the Protective Covenants for Parc Christian that would allow the construction of one-story homes as small as 1400 square feet and two-story homes with 900 square foot ground floors.

Compared with homes in the near neighborhood of the proposed subdivision, this would allow construction of houses much smaller than those already in the area and hence credence to the argument that the character of the neighborhood might change.
